

Martyn Dade-Robertson

BIOGRAPHY

Martyn Dade-Robertson is a Lecturer in Architecture and Communication, a member of the Digital Interaction Research Group in Newcastle University's research facility Culture Lab and is the Co-Investigator on PATINA [1] a Digital Economy Programme project on situated computing in research environments and Balance@Home and EU funded project with Philips Research on technologies for healthy living [2]. Some of these themes will be explored in his forthcoming book The Architecture of Information. His Ph.D. which was completed at Cambridge University and he has experience in a range of design and computing contexts including work for Microsoft and Philips as a researcher and interaction designer.